Ninja Invasion!

by Samuel Johnson

chapter 1

The Boat to america

HI YOOH HAAAAAAA!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Yin Was out of breath from dodging and deflecting saw blades. This was the twelfth time today ALONE he'd run this training course. he may be a bionic powered ninja but he was still human. That still didn't stop his master from giving him seemingly impossible courses that he had to run a hundred times a day. But there was an upside to it all he liked to imagine he was saving the president of Japan's daughter and when he had saved her she gave him a kiss on the cheek .he just had finished the course his thirteenth time and restarted when he was called by his master. One little problem with that, there was saws everywhere. He ducked and dodged, everything was going in slow motion. decided he was just going to have to teleport. He started to move over but he remembered that the teleportation network was down for maintenance. he slid on his back, caught a falling blade with his index and middle finger threw it knocking another in the window to face the city of Tokyo he jumped over all the trees and ran through the door that went out of the training room he was "how much training information is on that ninja chip they implanted into your brain?"

"everything,i've finished my training"Yin replied "ok then, I need you to go to america and make P.O.W.'s of the war mongers that Midas has hired to attack us you have to go into the states as a Middle schooler and take them down one at a time I have a boat ready for you and it's disguised as a french steam boat"

Yin was at the docks with his master he started to go across plank but his master stopped him and laid his hands on his athletic twelve year old frame "I have a confession to make. you are not Japanese"he said "WHAT!!!!!!" Yin exclaimed "You are american and "because of this I thought you would rather die then do what the president said" "Nonsense!!!"Yin yelled "I would never betray the legacy of my fighting style!!!! even if I am from a different legacy than the forefathers of this country!!"
